Beneficial Ways to Make a Year End Gift to JDRF

You'll find each of the following explained in our free publication: A New Perspective on Year End Gifts:

Cash. Cash is still the most popular way to make a year end gift. Gifts made before December 31 qualify for an immediate income tax deduction.*

Securities. Gifts of appreciated stocks, bonds, or mutual funds qualify for an immediate charitable income tax deduction* while allowing you to bypass 100% of the tax on your capital gain.

Charitable Gift Annuity. You can make a gift to JDRF that will pay you a fixed amount every year for as long as you live. Charitable gift annuities can be for one or two lives, and the payout rate is determined by the age(s) of the donor(s) at the time the gift annuity is established.

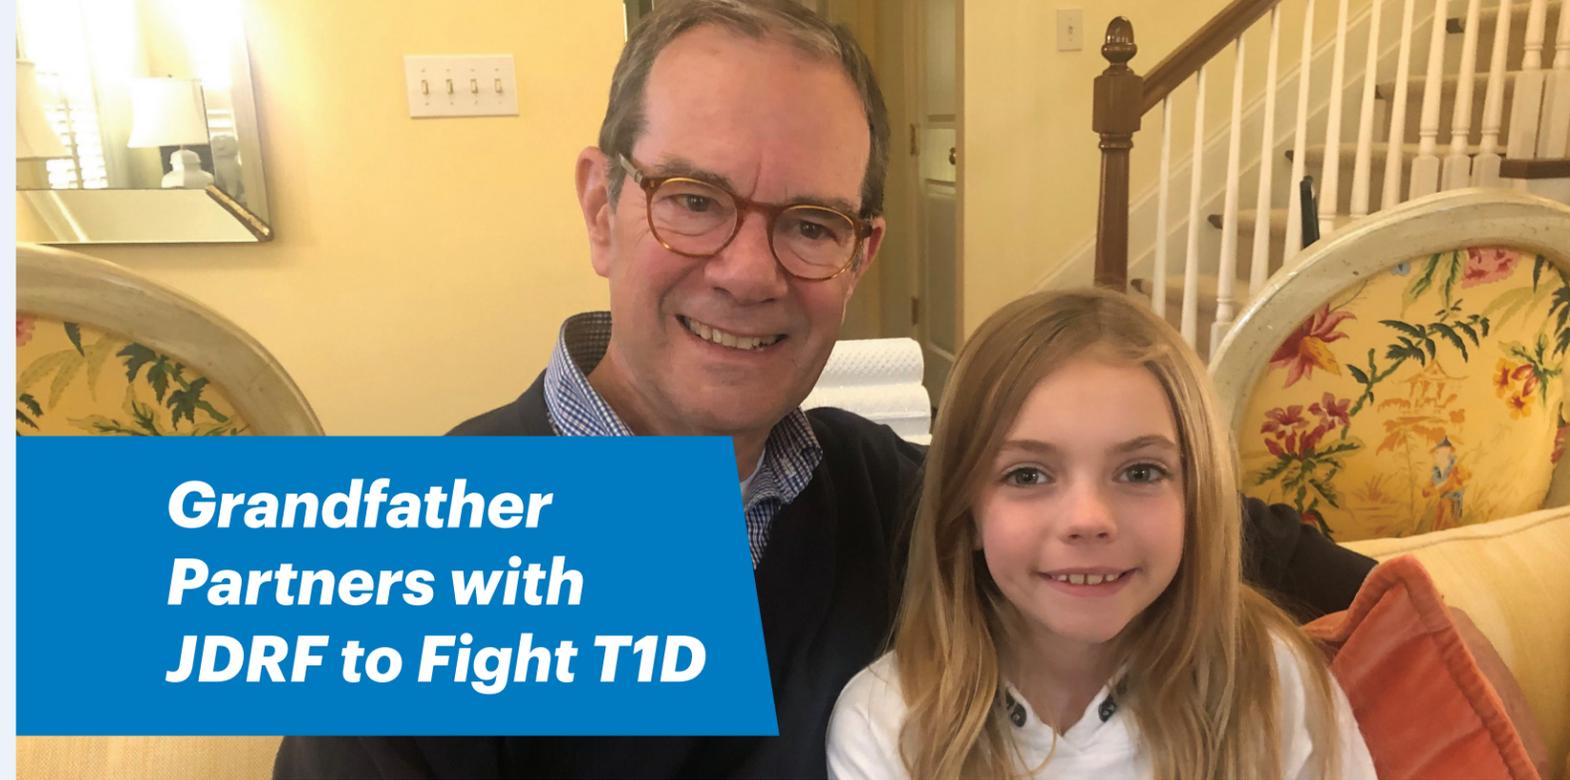

IRA Charitable Rollover. If you are age 70½ or older, you can make a distribution from your IRA directly to JDRF up to $100,000. This tax-wise option is a wonderful way to meet your distribution requirement while benefiting the work of JDRF.

Donor Advised Fund. Donor advised funds are the fastest growing tool for making charitable gifts. A grant from a Donor Advised Fund is a simple and convenient way to make a year end gift to JDRF.

Charitable Bequest. You don't have to have your will rewritten to include a future gift to JDRF. Adding a gift to an existing will is easy and inexpensive.

Beneficiary Designation. Designating JDRF as the future beneficiary of a bank, brokerage, or retirement account is an easy way to make a future gift to JDRF.

*Recognition of tax savings requires that you (or your CPA) itemize deductions when filing your Federal income tax return. Deductions are subject to standard limitations.

Grandfather Partners with JDRF to Fight T1D

Devastated by the news that his granddaughter Adlee had been diagnosed with type 1 diabetes (T1D) in 2017 at the age of 6, Dr. Evan Beane decided to fight back against the disease by becoming an ardent JDRF supporter.

"I just knew I needed to do whatever I could to help Adlee and other kids just like her," he says.

He chose JDRF for a simple reason: results. "In the last 50 years, progress has been made in better management of T1D because of the research that has been done by JDRF. In the last 20 years, the pace of progress has picked up speed," says Dr. Beane.

"In the last 10 years, even faster progress has been made. We are now at the point that we can see the real possibility of a cure for T1D. This has only been possible because of the research dollars that have been given to JDRF. My goal is to see a cure for T1D in my lifetime."

In addition to providing financial support to JDRF, Dr. Beane has become active in the organization. He has participated in One Walk as well as Ride to Cure Diabetes, a 100-mile bike ride to raise money for T1D research.

Recently, Dr. Beane and his wife made the decision to include a bequest to JDRF in their will and were welcomed into JDRF BETA Society--a special group of supporters who have included a gift to JDRF in their will, trust, life insurance policy, donor advised fund or other financial planning instrument. Dr. Beane also serves JDRF as the leader for the Central Ohio Chapter Research Information Team.

A retired chiropractor, Dr. Beane believes that grandparents are especially well-suited to assist JDRF in the fight against T1D. "They have the time, are not directly tied-down in managing T1D on a daily basis, and may have the financial resources to support additional T1D research."

Asked what words of encouragement he would have for families with a child diagnosed with T1D, Dr. Beane replied, "First, it is going to get better. Second, managing T1D is much more sophisticated and more effective thanks to JDRF research. Finally, after a year or so you get into a little more comfortable zone where managing T1D becomes the new normal."

Dr. Beane sees better things ahead for people living with T1D. "Management of the disease continues to improve through continuous glucose monitoring systems, insulin pumps, better insulins, and closed loop systems – a total game changer in controlling dangerous glucose levels," he says.

"Most important is the fact that JDRF is committed to the cure of T1D."

Gifts of all shapes and sizes — including many that don't cost anything today — make a vital difference.

Contributions made today, as well as those provided through your estate, can help:

Leading the way to a cure... improving lives today and tomorrow

JDRF is the world's largest nonprofit funder of type 1 diabetes (T1D) research. Our research team oversee a diverse portfolio of therapy areas focused on curing T1D and improving lives.

We also are pursuing ways to improve lives today, to make management of the disease easier and our community healthy until we find cures. We are driving work in glucose control therapies, advanced insulin, next-stage artificial pancreas systems and continuous glucose monitors. We also are driving research forward on complications, aiming to prevent kidney and eye disease that often are serious complications of T1D.

But research is just part of what we do. We also have a strong advocacy voice, championing the need for more funding and also for coverage, affordability and choice. The third piece of our story is community engagement. These teams are the compassionate and ever-present supporters of the T1D community, providing education, resources and information about new advances and treatment options to help families through the challenges they face.

In the last 50 years, JDRF has played a key role in nearly every advance made for the T1D community.
